Cancer Film for Women April 11

The women in Saline county will have the opportunity on April 11 to learn how to safeguard their health and lives. They will have a chance to see a motion picture that doctors say already has saved the lives of a great many women and can be the means of saving thousands more each year.

Showing of the technicolor film entitled "Breast Self-Examination" has been arranged by Mrs. James Gaskins, educational chairman of the Saline county chapter of the American Cancer society. There will be one showing of this film at the Orpheum theatre at 3:30 by courtesy of the Turner-Farrar association.

Seeing the "SBE" film is health and life insurance that costs nothing. Admission is always free and will be shown to women only. A physician will be present to answer questions after the showing. This picture was produced jointly by the American Cancer society and the National Cancer Institute of the United States Public Health Service.

Malenkov Shows
Off New Plane

LONDON (AP) — Former Soviet Premier Georgi Malenkov gleefully took Western newsmen on a surprise tour of Russia's new commercial jet airliner today. Then he asked for freer trade between East and West, and took off for home.

Newsmen were covering the departure of Malenkov, ending a three-week visit to Britain, when he suddenly wove aside Russian and British security guards and he and Ambassador Jacob Malik took newsmen on a personal tour of the twin-jet craft.

Western reporters, never before permitted inside the plane, found a strange interior — with oxygen tubes at each seat indicating the world's most advanced plane in actual non-military service has no cabin pressurization.

They also found four private lounges indicating this was a plane for very important passengers.

Russia unveiled the TU104 jet to the West for the first time March 22 when it brought Soviet Secret Police Chief Ivan Serov here.

Wintry Air in Midwest Areas Shove
Temperatures to Near Freezing Point

By United Press
April showers turned to wintry snow flurries over parts of the Midwest this morning as a cold surge of air shoved springlike temperatures toward the freezing point.

Snowfalls measuring as much as three inches in parts of Wisconsin and Minnesota chilled hopes of gardeners to spend the weekend preparing backyard flower beds.

Weather forecasters issued a warning to motorists in northern Minnesota to be alert for considerable drifting of snow blown by northerly winds ranging from 30 to 45 miles per hour.

Rain covered the nation from the middle Mississippi Valley to East Coast states. Rain also fell over the coastal region of Washington and Oregon.

The San Francisco area enjoyed its hottest day of the year Friday when the mercury climbed as high as 83.

Colder weather was expected to sweep down the coast today accompanied by overcast skies. One of the sharpest contrasts temperatures Friday was felt

Stevenson and Kefauver Each
Charge 'Foul'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Adlai Stevenson and Sen. Estes Kefauver are crying "foul" in their fight for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Stevenson has accused Kefauver of talking "nonsense" and Kefauver has used the same term about Stevenson.

As the battle grew rougher, Stevenson scheduled a meeting today at Chicago with supporters from 22 states and 50 colleges who are organizing a "let's talk sense" fund-raising drive.

Kefauver continued his campaign in New Jersey. He is seeking the state's 36 national convention votes in the April 17 primary against a state organization delegate slate regarded as pro-Stevenson.

Estes Leaves Impression

In New Jersey as in other states the Tennessee senator has given the impression that Stevenson is the candidate of party bosses.

This campaign line stung Stevenson last week in asserting that Kefauver was talking nonsense. And in a Jacksonville, Fla., speech Friday, he said his rival was unfairly accusing him of being a candidate of the bosses.

Stevenson also charged that presidential ambitions had led Kefauver to neglect Senate duties and miss important votes. Kefauver retorted that Stevenson was talking "nonsense," engaging in "mud slinging" and sounding like "a man who is desperate."

Hammar-skjold
Halts in London
For Crisis Talks

Will Continue to Rome on Mission to Avert Mid-East War

LONDON (AP) — United Nations Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold flew from London toward the Middle East today with new assurances of British support for truce tightening measures to prevent an "accidental" Arab-Israeli war.

Hammarskjold stopped over briefly in London this afternoon on his peace mission flight from New York and held an emergency hour-long airport conference with British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd.

The urgency of their talk was heightened by fresh gunfights reported from the embattled Gaza Strip.

Hammarskjold then flew on to Rome, where he will meet with the U. N. chief Palestine truce supervisor, Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, Sunday before heading on to the scene of the Arab-Israeli dispute. In Rome he also may see Pope Pius XII.

Informed sources said Lloyd assured Hammarskjold of British support for tightening up the present Palestine truce organization to prevent the small border skirmishes from exploding into full-scale war.

As the UN chief headed East, the French government announced that Foreign Minister Christian Pineau has postponed a scheduled April visit to Tel Aviv because of the new outbreak of violence.

Diplomatic observers were shocked by the bitterness of the new outbreaks, which have left at least 63 Egyptian dead and nearly 100 wounded. Official UN figures say four Israeli civilians and two soldiers were wounded.

Hammarskjold himself said in New York Friday night that the Gaza Strip fighting had not reduced his feeling of optimism, although it underlined the need for his trip.

President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles reviewed the Palestine situation Friday in Washington, and the State Department stressed the "urgency and need" of Hammarskjold's mission.

Husband, Wife Duo-Pianists to Present
Concert Monday at First Baptist Church

Two of Canada's most outstanding musicians, the husband and wife duo-pianists, Margaret Parsons and Clifford Poole, will appear here Monday, April 9, at the First Baptist church under the auspices of the Harrisburg Community Concert association. The concert will begin at 8:15 p. m.

The achievements of this charming and talented couple as a two-piano team is a natural extension of the great success that each had enjoyed as a solo artist before their merger in marriage and music.

Margaret Parsons hails from Saskatchewan in Western Canada. After receiving a performer's degree at the age of thirteen, she went to the Toronto Royal Conservatory of Music where, under the tutelage of Norman Wilks, she won the gold medal and scholarship on graduation. She made her debut in Toronto's Eaton Auditorium while still in her teens. This initial appearance was an immediate success. For several years she was on the faculty of the Royal Conservatory and is now a consultant to the Piano Department of Music Teachers College of the University of Western Ontario.

Clifford Poole was born in England but has lived in Canada since the age of one. He, too, studied in Toronto and was well on his way toward a distinguished career when the war interrupted. After three years in the Royal Canadian Air Force, he returned to his music and became a member of the faculty of the Royal Conservatory.

Singer Julius La Rosa, Rory Meyer,
Brunette Secretary to Perry Como, Wed

FRANCIS CREEK, Wis. (AP) — Singer Julius La Rosa, 26-year-old bobby soxers' idol, and pretty brunette Rosemary (Rory) Meyer marry today in the Catholic church of this tiny village near Lake Michigan.

La Rosa, whose popularity has climbed since Arthur Godfrey fired him, weds the 25-year-old secretary of another famous singer — Perry Como.

The guest list included only relatives of the La Rosa and Meyer families and close, personal friends. But the Manitowish County traffic officers were out in full force because hundreds of onlookers jammed the area.

Como wasn't able to attend because he has a television show tonight, but about 50 guests arrived from New York City.

Rory wore a chapel length white nylon tulle gown of simple design with lace medallions at the wedding in little St. Anne Catholic church, and La Rosa wore formal morning attire.

Three priests officiated at the nuptial mass — the Rev. Joseph A. Rauch of the local church, the Rev. Robert Parella of New York City, and the Rev. Mario Dittami of Akron, Ohio. The St. Ann Choir sang the mass.

The couple said the destination for the honeymoon was "top secret." La Rosa cleared the way for a carefree honeymoon by freeing himself of singing commitments for 10 days.

After the honeymoon, La Rosa and his bride plan to move into a 4½-room apartment near the East River in Manhattan.

Rory's 19-year-old brother, Clarence Jr., who is studying for the priesthood at St. Lawrence College in Mt. Calvary, Wis., assisted at the altar.

The bride's 21-year-old twin sisters, Caron and Carol, had to draw names to decide who would be maid of honor. Caron won, Carol and Rory's cousin, Leone Meyer, were bridesmaids.

La Rosa's best man was Joey St. George and another brother of Rory's, Ronald, 13, served as altar boy.

The parents of both bride and bridegroom attended the wedding — Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Meyer, Rockwood, Wis., and Mr. and Mrs. Salvatore La Rosa, Mount Vernon, N. Y.

servatory. Before long he was invited to become head of the Piano Department of Music Teachers College of the University of Western Ontario along with Mrs. Poole as consultant, so the couple moved to London, Ontario, where they now make their home.

Together they have achieved an enviable reputation. They have appeared in recital throughout Canada, and their initial performances on the CBC network were so popular they have since been re-engaged for several long-term series. This season, with their own Steinway grands in a special trailer, Parsons and Poole are making an extensive tour of both Canada and the United States.

VA Postpones Sale
Of Marion Hospital
Grounds Indefinitely

The Veterans Administration in Washington has decided to postpone indefinitely the sale of 123 acres of ground surrounding the VA hospital at Marion. The Register was informed today in telegrams from U. S. Senator Everett Dirksen and Congressman Kenneth J. Gray.

The announcements culminate months of vigorous protests to the sale of the ground by both legislators and veterans organizations of southern Illinois and surrounding states.

Senator Dirksen states he has been informed that the site to the rear of the hospital may be subject to re-survey at some future date.

Indict Olmsted
Man For Murder

MOUND CITY, Ill. (AP) — Lester (Shot) Winchester, Olmsted, Friday was indicted for murder by a Pulaski county grand jury in connection with the Feb. 23 slaying of tavern keeper Clate Adams.

Circuit Judge Ross Reynolds issued a bench warrant for Winchester's arrest, and set bond at $20,000. Winchester already was under indictment on a charge of receiving stolen goods and was free under a $9,000 bond.

The jury charged Winchester, who operates a tavern known as "Club 37" on Ill. 37 near Olmsted, "aided and abetted" Alfred Reahm, 37, Cairo, in the murder of Adams.

Reahm, alias Al Masters, was sentenced Thursday to 180 years in prison after pleading guilty at his arraignment in Pulaski County Circuit Court.

Reahm testified before the grand jury which indicted Winchester. Norman Halliday, 33, also has been indicted for murder in the case. He was arrested at Cairo with Reahm after the slaying of Adams. Sheriff Robert Aldrich said Halliday and Reahm were both in Adams' tavern the day he was shot.

Aldrich said Adams argued with the two men and was shot as he went for a gun.

Officers Hold
Runaway Boy

Held by county officers is a 15-year-old Chicago lad, John Herrod. State police informed Sheriff William T. Barrett that the boy, who was visiting here, was a runaway.

Young Herrod, 5-1 and weighing 100 pounds, left Chicago with a Harrisburg boy and was visiting here when Chicago officials notified state police and the state police notified Barrett that the boy was a runaway.

The people whom he was visiting brought him to the county jail.

Conferees Okay
Rigid Supports
By 8 to 2 Vote

President Will

Discuss Measure

With GOP Leaders

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower summoned Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson to an urgent conference today to decide what to do about the Congress-bound farm bill.

Senate-House conferees Friday dealt the President a smashing defeat by approving 8-2 a compromise farm bill including high rigid price supports for one year and a handful of other administration-opposed features.

Some Republicans predicted the President will veto the bill if Congress passes it even though it contains his 12-billion dollar voluntary soil bank program. However, the President said Wednesday he would not demand perfection if he could get a "good bill for farmers."

The farm aid bill designed to increase the election-year income of farmers one-billion dollars will go to Congress next week. The House was expected to begin considering it Wednesday.

Strategy Meeting Planned

The President will meet with GOP congressional leaders Monday, providing a last-minute opportunity to discuss strategy. He will leave later Monday for a week's vacation at Augusta, Ga.

The conference committee completed work on the politically-potent bill after weeks of wrangling.

Congressional experts called the bill one of the most complex in recent years.

It would establish a price-supporting "dual parity" system for computing support prices and would authorize two-price support plans for wheat and rice. The wheat plan would increase the cost of producing bread by about one cent a loaf.

The bill also conceivable could lead to higher consumer prices of meat, poultry, eggs, ice cream and other products manufactured from milk. Retail butter prices might jump as much as two cents a pound.

The bill would raise price supports of corn, cotton, dairy products, feed grains, peanuts, rice and wheat this year. Critics said the higher supports would increase the nation's already huge farm surpluses.

Land to Lie Idle

The soil bank is designed to cut down farm surpluses. Farmers would be paid to let surplus crop land lie idle or plant conservation crops.

The two-price plans for rice and wheat would guarantee farmers high price supports for rice and wheat consumed domestically by humans, but much lower prices for the remainder of the crops.

The rice program would be in effect this year and next year. The wheat program would go into effect next year if two-thirds of wheat farmers approve it in a referendum this summer.

The bill also would authorize an extra 500-million dollars a year to buy up surplus perishable crops to bolster sagging markets.

Corn acreage allotments in the main corn belt would be increased from 43-million to 51-million acres this year. The national cotton acreage allotment would be increased by 100,000 acres to 17.5-million acres in 1957 and 1958 with the increase going to small farmers.

THE STORY: Mike Morrison, an American, has been asked to deliver a document to London. Too late he learns that it is an important message for British Intelligence and two men already have died as a result of it. Mike is unable to contact the American embassy and flees to the airport. During a Stuka attack, Mike changes clothes, taking the uniform of a dead soldier. He collapses and is shoved aboard a truck.

Mike bolted up in his seat and then slumped back. His head pounded and throbbed. There was a dry, pasty, miserable taste in his mouth and a queasy feeling in his stomach. Mike pushed out of his seat and stretched. He was in a compartment on a train. He looked down the aisle and saw other compartments filled with wounded soldiers. Mike fumbled wildly through his pockets. He held the card—MAJOR THEODORE HOWE-WILKEN: INTELLIGENCE. He stared at the small white envelope. Stitches of memory returned and he began to fit pieces together. So many of the events seemed hazy; others he could not recall. The train—the uniform—the envelope—the pass. It was no nightmare—it had really happened. He found the comfort of his pipe and tried to reason the situation out. Stergiou, the attorney, was obviously mixed up in something of importance. The "something" being the contents of the small white envelope. An adversary wanted the envelope. British Intelligence was in on it, so, Mike reasoned, the Germans were the adversaries. Michael Morrison knew as much as he wanted to know. One thing was certain: he was going to get out of the whole affair quickly. The fright of yesterday turned to anger. The audacity of that Stergiou!

The train stopped. There was a sound of digging outside. The door of the compartment opened. A man wearing the Red Cross arm band of a medic entered. After examining the wounded soldier opposite Mike, the medic opened his kit and pumped a shot of morphine into the man's arm. "Easy now, chappie, the doctor will be by shortly." The medic turned to Mike. "I see you're up now. How are you feeling?"

"Little the worse for wear." "We examined you when they put you aboard last night. Couldn't locate a wound. If you're feeling better you'd best rejoin your unit. You'll find them somewhere about on the train." "What's the digging?" "Sappers. They're going to blow the bridges after the last of the trains pass. We're withdrawing in to lower Greece, the Peloponnese."

Mike felt his heart sink. He had to make a move quickly. "Who's in command of the train?" Mike asked curiously. "Colonel Potter—why?" Mike flashed Major Howe-Wilken's card at the medic. "Find the Colonel and tell him I wish to speak to him immediately." "Yes, sir." The medic retreated to the door. "Soldier!" "Yes, Major." "Not a word to anyone but Colonel Potter."

"Yes, sir." The medic left. The rest would be quite simple, Mike thought. He'd explain the entire story to Colonel Potter. He had the papers and his own passport to authenticate everything. It was, after all, British responsibility. They would be obligated to escort him back to Athens or arrange a flight out.

As the last unit boarded the train one of the men attracted his attention. He didn't know why, but Mike found himself staring at a short man, wearing large horn-rimmed glasses. Perhaps he looked so much out of place in the company of soldiers. The man couldn't have been much over five feet tall and his uniform literally hung on him. Another peculiarity—the little man carried none of the paraphernalia of soldiers. There was only an outsize pistol strapped to his waist.

Something about him—something about him. . . . What was it? Yes, he was standing in the guard shack at the airone. The sentry said something, something about a man who was looking for him. A little man with horn-rimmed glasses. The little man boarded the train. Mike tried to reason with himself. Stergiou's office—the voice that spoke to him from the shadows. . . . The man with the walrus mustache, Howe-Wilken, his voice had whispered, "They have friends, everywhere. . . . They'll get you, Morrison."

The door opened. Mike looked up with a start. It was the medic. "Colonel Potter will see you, sir. The Colonel is in the fourth car forward, third compartment."

Mike stumbled into the aisle as the train lurched around a bend. He passed through cars filled with soldiers. Colonel Potter was in the next car up. Mike was coming closer and closer to his deliverance. He stopped dead in his tracks. Leaning against the door, blocking it, stood a man. The man's icy blue eyes were on Mike. He was tall and blond and wore a New Zealand uniform. The man in the bar who called himself Jack Mosley.

LISTEN VOTERS OF THE FIFTY-NINTH DISTRICT

(Gallatin, Hamilton, Hardin, Johnson, Massac, Pope, Saline, Williamson)

Tuesday, April 10, you have the privilege to make a very important decision. That day you must choose two of seven candidates for seats in the legislature to represent you, the people of this district, in all matters pertaining to state legislation. So please read all of this column.

Being a candidate for one of these seats puts a person in the position of trying to sell himself to the public, a difficult job indeed for anyone. So let's first examine the candidate carefully, check him over, ask about him, then make your decision.

My name is Thomas J. Throgmorton, Jr., of Marion, Illinois. I come from quite a family of Ministers, but I have chosen politics, inasmuch as both serve the people. My age is 32 years, the youngest of the seven candidates. My Party Affiliation is Republican, and I am extremely proud to wear that label. I graduated from Southern Illinois University in 1950, majoring in Science and Government. For the past five years I have been in the Farm Equipment and Farm Supply business, here in Marion, Illinois. I served in the Air Force during World War II, as a fighter pilot with the 2nd Air Force. I am married, have one small son, aged 20 months.

Now, perhaps you will say, so what, that's an average life, and so it is. But, while in both high school and college, I served on the debate teams and I know that when a person is thrown into debate on the floor of the legislature, the most able and accomplished emerge the victors, because it is essentially a contest between who can get the most for his district. I can appreciate the problem of our farmers here who are trying to compete with ever increasing prices for what they have to buy, while selling their own products at depression levels. I am essentially against the unrealistic level of $100,000, as a top level support price than can be paid to farmers for their participation in our present farm program. Let us make it $10,000 for each farm then if any of the vast corporations want to go over that figure, let them sell their crops on the free market and take the prices for them that we had to take down here. I recognize that of course this is a federal program, but all programs originate at home. Just one crop year for the large acreage holder and disposal of his corn for 80 cents per bushel, and he will not be so eager to glut the market with his vast crops that are bought and paid for by our tax dollars, while we the small farmers foot his bill and ours, too. And Mrs. Housewife who lives in town, you aren't getting the benefit of these low prices paid to farmers. Check your food budget and see that your pork costs have only fallen 4% while the cost of hogs and most grades of cattle have fallen 50%. Just who do you think is getting the difference?

Now as to some of the proposals more directly concerned with the state government. One of the most important, is the problem of our old age pensioners, who because of the failure on the part of our state legislature in the past, to provide a workable solution, to the people who must rely on these pensions, we take the one item most near and dear to them, their home, and in effect lend them money on it so they might eke out a few more years of existence. Then, after their demise, our state, like some great landlord, grabs hold of this property, small as it may be, and sells it to the highest bidder. A much more practical solution can be worked out than this, and we need not humiliate these people, who only ask that our government help them out as they have helped it by being good citizens, serving their community, and unselfishly sending their sons off to war when this country called for them in its hour of need. Let us put a practical limit on the amount of homestead, and let them retain this one thing so priceless to them.

Upon being asked numerous times, I am always happy to say I am in favor of giving our Korean veterans a bonus. I myself received one for my participation in World War II, and those boys that gave their lives and limbs in the Korean war, are just as dead or crippled as they were in World War II. It makes no difference whether you lay in the mud of Europe or Korea, both were cold and nasty and no reason exists to deny them this small pittance.

And to the local people of my county, we are faced with the removal of one of our largest manufacturing units at Crab Orchard Lake to a location on the East coast. We need these factories here, not there, and if I am fortunate enough to be the choice of the voters of this district, I will personally lead a fight by Court Injunction, if necessary, to retain our factories here until a complete report is made to the people as to why this should happen and the necessary steps taken to encourage them to remain here and expand.

I realize that space does not permit me to bring to all of you what I would like to say, but of this you can be certain, NO POLITICAL MACHINE, NO SELFISH GROUP OF INDIVIDUALS is backing my campaign. Not one cent has been contributed to me, because when I am elected I want to be free to serve the interests of my people as they might best be served for their good.

Now that you have become somewhat acquainted with me, go to the polls April 10, and vote for those candidates whom you feel you are most closely associated with. I sincerely hope that I can stand and be counted with you.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says: Ike And Mr. Sam Rule Out Congressional Junkets.

WASHINGTON. — It won't be announced publicly, but President Eisenhower has ordered all Army, Navy, Air Force junkets for congressmen canceled until Congress adjourns.

Reason was a vigorous squawk from Speaker Sam Rayburn who found so many of his top committee chairmen out of town shortly before the Easter holiday that he couldn't get any work done. They had disappeared — courtesy of the Navy — on a Navy junket to Guantanamo Bay, Cuba. The Navy flew them on Navy planes to Cuba, then took them for a cruise on the supercarrier Forrestal.

Rayburn was so furious he telephoned Jim Hagerly at the White House and asked him to have the President warn the Army, Navy and Air Force against taking congressmen away from their work on junkets.

Eisenhower immediately cooperated. Result: The Air Force had to cancel invitations to congressmen to fly to California for the unveiling of the supersonic jet fighter F-104.

Note — It's suspected that the brass hats had purposely staged the junket to Cuba in order to get congressmen out of town just as the House of Representatives was scheduled to vote on two generals Gen. Joseph Swing wanted taken into the Immigration Service. A good many congressmen have objected to too much militarization of civilian agencies. General Swing went out in the end.

37,200,000 Students Attend Nation's Schools

WASHINGTON. — The Commerce Department reported today there are about 37,200,000 students enrolled in the nation's schools and colleges — an increase of 7 million in the last five years.

Kindergarten enrollment increased by 82 per cent — partly because more parents decided to take advantage of the privilege, the department said.

Enrollment in elementary schools rose 24 per cent and high school enrollment increased 19 per cent. The rate of college enrollments fell off in the early 1950s but has picked up again and is now above the 1950 level.

The report showed that 1,600,000 children were enrolled in kindergarten. Those going to elementary schools totaled 23,400,000, while high school attendance had climbed to 7,900,000.

Montana Girl Rules as Cherry Blossom Queen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Brunette Barbara Lyman of Missoula, Mont., ruled the nation's capital today as queen of the 1954 Cherry Blossom Festival.

Secretary of Interior Douglas McKay was scheduled to place a coronet on the 19-year-old queen's head at ceremonies and a pageant before the blossom-ringed Jefferson Memorial.

Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams selected Miss Lyman Friday night by spinning a wheel of fortune at the annual Cherry Blossom Ball. Fifty-three cherry blossom princesses representing states and territories took part in the competition.

Adams had to spin the wheel twice. The first time the pointer stopped on a black space next to his homestate, New Hampshire.

Miss Lyman kissed Adams on the cheek as the more than 1,000 ball guests cheered.

Hundreds of thousands of sight-seers continued to crowd the capital on the next-to-last day of the festival.

The National Park Service estimated 20,000 persons circled the Tidal Basin Friday to see the Cherry Blossoms in full bloom.

FARM SURPLUSES: MOST GROW AND GROW—Congress is locked in a bitter battle to settle upon a plan that will serve as a spring for the farmer's economic headaches and reduce our gigantic surpluses of farm products. But those surpluses—most of them—continue to pile up. Newscharts below show farm output of six basic commodities and the proportion of it held by the government at the beginning of 1956. Government stock graphs at right of each chart show quantities in storage and pledged for loans as of June 30 and December 31 of each of the years. Note that only butter shows a sharp decline of surplus, with cheese leveling off during 1955. Total value of these surpluses on January 1, 1956, was $7,592,000,000. Data from the Conference Board.

Have You Been Asked?
Who can deny that the interests of childhood and youth are the interests of mankind? Yet farm advisers report difficulty in persuading men to become 4-H Club leaders.

If you have been asked to lead a club, it is because you have something to offer. You are a man of good character, with ability and skills, and one who can kindle enthusiasm.

Good leaders both give and receive. Who can forget the satisfaction of selecting, growing and fitting, or the thrill of exhibiting a calf, pig or lamb during his own youth? Dedicated leadership carries with it a promise of youthful pleasures recaptured.

Leadership does take time, and a good leader is a busy man. A Swiss philosopher, Rousseau, said, "The training of children is a profession, where we must know how to lose time in order to gain it."

A visitor to the sheep barns last week would have seen action around the sorting and holding chute. The entire ewe and ram flock was getting a spring tonic of phenothiazine drench. Norris Phelps, sheep herdsman, knows that clean pastures mean healthier, faster growing lambs. He knows that a few wormy sheep soon spread many infective eggs over a large field. So each spring he worms all but the lambs before turning the flock onto grass.

Last week's visitor, besides learning to drench, would have seen a crew trimming the feet of sheep. Foot troubles and lameness in the flock may stem either directly or indirectly from excessive and malformed hoof growth. Long, sled-like growth hampers activity and movement by placing the animal's weight improperly on the heels. This causes lameness and strain on the ankles or pasterns. The toe and sidewall of the horny hoof grow down and under the foot, catching dirt and filth that serve as a reservoir for infection.

Pruning shears and a sharp pocketknife are the only tools you need for trimming and shaping feet. The job is most easily done after the hoof has been softened by rain or dew-laden pastures. If you haven't trimmed the feet of your sheep, set a ewe on her haunches and examine her feet. Have a sharp knife handy. You'll probably want to start cutting.

Mishandling Livestock Costs $50 Million

Every year more than 70 million pounds of meat worth 50 million dollars are lost by mishandling livestock during marketing.

B. C. Breidenstein, University of Illinois meats specialist, says both producer and packer share these terrific losses. The packer must trim off bruised parts and discard them as waste. It's only natural that he will allow for these losses in the price he pays.

These bruises may be caused by various things, but the majority are due to improper use of canes, whips and clubs. Livestock handlers also cause bad bruises by kicking and prodding the animals.

In cattle about half the losses are due to overcrowded trucks and railroad cars where animals are continually bumping, crowding and rushing one another.

Since most of the injuries occur when animals are hauled, there are several things the truckers can do to reduce losses, says Breidenstein.

He urges livestock handlers to trade the clubs and canes for an electric prod. The electric prod will move animals faster, easier and without inflicting bruises.

Truckers can also reduce losses by keeping their trucks well-bedded with sawdust, straw, sand or similar material. This helps keep animals from slipping and falling. When animals "get down" in a load, they usually get bruised. For instance if a hog's rear feet slip apart and he goes down, he probably will bruise both hams.

Keeping truck beds free of protruding nails, wire or other sharp objects is another way to reduce carcass damage. Partitions to separate mixed loads of hogs and cattle, and to separate "wild" animals with long horns helps reduce losses too.

Breidenstein says there may still be injuries, but these practices will help reduce the number and severity of the bruises.

Rate Alfalfa, Corn Over Oats For Dairy Silage

Research recently completed at the University of Illinois College of Agriculture indicates that corn silage and alfalfa silage preserved with corn and cob meal are superior to oat silage for high-producing dairy cows.

In an experiment at the University dairy farm, high-producing cows didn't eat as much oat silage as other silages because the oat silage was not so palatable. The result was a loss in weight and a drop in milk flow when cows were switched from either alfalfa or corn silage to oat silage. The opposite effect was seen when cows went from oat silage to either of the other two silages.

Two seniors in the College of Agriculture, Jim Bartell of Peoria and Dick Knight of Rockford, conducted the test as a special research problem under the supervision of two Department of Dairy Science members, E. E. Ormiston and J. H. Byers.

The oat silage was considered to be excellent quality. The oats were cut in the early-dough stage. Had they been harvested for grain, they would have yielded about 85 bushels an acre.

The cows used in the experiment were 12 high-producing Holsteins. They were fed 14 pounds of good quality alfalfa hay daily throughout the test. All cows got a 15 percent grain mix fed according to their individual production.

Final figures show that, on the average, cows ate 53 pounds of corn silage, 45 pounds of alfalfa silage and 28 pounds of oat silage daily. In all possible sequences the silages were fed free choice for five-week periods.

The researchers report that, in order to keep a high-producing cow milking at capacity, either more hay or more grain must be fed to offset the low intake of oat silage.

More research is needed on the subject, the dairymen say. Dry cows or heifers may possibly eat enough oat silage to meet their needs.

Creep Feeding Pigs Will Pay

Creep feeding pigs will increase farmers' profits, says S. W. Terrill, head of the swine division at the University of Illinois College of Agriculture.

Terrill says pigs will start eating within the first two weeks after farrowing, if they have a palatable ration. Pigs have a "sweet tooth" so sugar increases the palatability of the starter ration. Hulled oats or oat groats is a favorite of baby pigs too, and they like pelleted feed better than meal.

Many commercial feed manufacturers are following the University recommendations and including sugar and hulled or rolled oats in pelleted pig starter rations. These add to the cost of the feed, Terrill admits, but he says expense is not a big factor in the starter ration since pigs eat a relatively small amount of this feed.

When pigs are 4 to 6 weeks old, farmers can gradually switch to regular pig starter containing more corn. This will be a lower cost feed and pigs can stay on it until they weigh 35-40 pounds.

Terrill emphasizes that it is important to have a starter ration available to pigs during the first week. He says putting the feed in a shallow pan under the brooder also may start pigs eating earlier.

Pigs like to eat near their mothers, so creep pens located near the sows' feeding area encourages pigs to use the creep. The specialist urges swine raisers to locate creep pens both inside and outside the hog house since pigs will eat more if feed is available both places.

Terrill says farmers who set up creep pens for their spring pig crop will be rewarded with more profit through faster gains.

Auto Comes Off Second Best to a Dog

OMAHA, Neb. — Police received this report about a German shepherd dog "running over" a 1955 auto.

The dog, the car owner said, was chasing a truck down a residential street. The car got too close and when the dog saw he couldn't avoid it, he jumped to the hood of the car, ran across the top, jumped back to the street and continued running.

The auto suffered a broken hood ornament.

Fred Animal
The cheetah, fastest four-footed animal in the world, has been clocked at 20 miles per hour, 20 or 24 miles faster than a race horse.

Highway Dangerous, R. R. Truck More So

ADRIAN, Mich. — Dale T. Miller lost his bearings in the fog and inadvertently drove his car onto the Wabash Railway tracks.

Unable to turn around, Miller decided to drive along the tracks to the next crossing, two miles away.

Miller got halfway to the crossing before he heard the whistle of a train coming up from the rear. He abandoned his car seconds before it was demolished by a freight locomotive.

THE MANY FRIENDS OF DALE H. SULLIVAN

URGENTLY REQUEST THE CITIZENS OF THIS AREA TO MARK ONLY ONE "X" WHEN YOU CAST YOUR VOTE FOR REPRESENTATIVE IN THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

REPUBLICAN PRIMARY, TUESDAY, APRIL 10

...and to mark that "X" beside the name of

X Dale H. Sullivan

A movement has been started in the lower counties of the district to try and get voters of that area to cast three votes for the candidate from Massac County. An advertisement appeared in the Metropolis "News" this week, stating that the Massac County candidate is more interested in Massac County and its problems.

The advertisement also contained a plea for voters to band together against Saline and other counties of this area, claiming that Massac County might never get another representative.

Our area has not had a state representative for many years. We are entitled to one. Saline county is one of the largest and most important counties in the district. Gallatin, Hardin, Hamilton, and Saline counties must stand together, united as an area, behind one man who will go to bat for them!

We're not being selfish, but we must fight fire with fire! A vote for a single candidate for representative entitles him to THREE votes when the votes are counted. WE STRONGLY URGE YOU TO VOTE FOR YOUR OWN BEST INTEREST...

VOTE FOR THE MAN WHO WILL REPRESENT YOU IN THE TRUEST SENSE OF THE WORD!

VOTE FOR

X Dale H. Sullivan

Candidate For Representative In The General Assembly

Republican Primary, Tuesday, April 10

Friends of Dale H. Sullivan, who are interested in having a Representative from this area, have contributed funds to help pay for this advertisement.

If I Haven't Met You Personally
I Am Asking You Now For Your Vote

LESTER BRINKLEY

Republican Candidate
FOR PRECINCT COMMITTEEMAN
Precinct No. 7, Harrisburg

Democratic Voters:

For the past several years, I have served as Senatorial Committeeman from Saline county. Each county names a committeeman to serve on the District committee to determine the number of Representative nominees, and to fill vacancies in event of emergencies. I have always attempted to work for the best interest of the Democratic party.

Under the new legislative reapportionment, committeemen are elected as before, but are called Representative committeemen. I am a candidate for that office. It pays nothing, except the honor and the chance to be of service to the party. I will appreciate your vote for Representative committeeman at the April 10 primary.

GOING HOME

You've heard of heredity and environment. You know that the latter usually exercises the stronger influence upon the development of a child.

Then you are face to face with the dilemma of the Church.

The Church can give to every child who comes within its influence the heritage of the Christian faith. It can teach him the truth about God; it can show him the Christian way of life.

But what happens when a child goes home? Will the lesson "stay learned?" Or will it be destroyed by language, attitude and example contrary to all the Church has taught?

It isn't enough to send your child to church school. Become a church-going family! Let Christian truth mold the life of your home and it will mold the life of your child.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

'Power for A World Mission'

Acts 1:6-8; 2:22-23

GOLDEN TEXT: "Ye shall receive power after that the Holy Spirit is come upon you; and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth." (Acts 1:8)

INTRODUCTION: With this lesson we begin a new series of studies. Last week we brought to a close our studies of the life of Jesus as found in the gospel of Luke. During the next three months we shall be studying from the book of Acts. Here we shall see how the Lord continues His work, through his disciples, after he ascended back into heaven.

The work that was begun by those disciples still goes on. It has not yet been completed, nor shall it be until Jesus returns. He empowered those first disciples with the Holy Spirit. He empowers every true follower of his today with the same power of the same Holy Spirit.

Remember, friend, God has never asked any person to do anything but that He has given them both the talent and the power to accomplish that task.

The book from which this Scripture is taken is called "The Acts of the Apostles." It could well be called, "The Acts of the Holy Spirit."

I YE SHALL RECEIVE POWER (VV. 6-8)

These followers of Jesus had now been enjoying his fellowship for about forty days after his resurrection. They had no doubts in their hearts now about his Lordship and Kingship. He was to them truly the Messiah.

What they wanted to know was the very thing that any other normal person would have wanted to know. Would he establish his Kingdom soon? How long must we wait, Lord, for you to take over the throne of Israel? How long before we can "turn the tables" and rule the earth? It was not a matter now of "if" he would do this, but "when" would he do it?

Jesus told them, just as he tells us today, that there are some things which we are not to know. In God's good time, He will reveal these mysteries to us. Of one thing we can be sure, and that is, God is working all things out according to His own plans and purposes.

Jesus promised those disciples power of the Holy Spirit to witness throughout the world. We do not have to wait for that power today, as they did. Every Christian has the indwelling power of the Holy Spirit.

II JESUS, THE SON OF GOD (VV. 22-33)

That Jesus is divine is no longer theory. It is an accepted fact. To us this needs no proof. However, to some of the people of his day, it did need proof. His resurrection and ascension was that proof. Romans 10:9 tells us that "if thou shalt believe that Christ is the Son of God and that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved."

1. HE WAS GOD'S SON — (v. 22) Listen to Simon Peter preach to those gathered in Jerusalem on the day of Pentecost: "Jesus of Nazareth, a man approved of God among you by miracles and wonders and signs, which God did by him in the midst of you." Yes, sir, God said and proved to the world that Jesus is His Son!

2. GOD GAVE HIM TO DIE — (v. 23) Jesus was not forced by the Roman soldiers, nor by all the Jews in Jerusalem to die. They did not have that much power. God gave him to die. If Jesus had not died, there would have been no perfect sacrifice for your sins. He said: "I lay down my life, that I might take it again. No man taketh it by power to lay it down, and I have power to take it up again." (John 10:17-18).

3. POWER OVER DEATH — (V. 24-32) Here Peter refers to Psalm 16, with which all those Jews were familiar. He shows them that he was absolutely impossible for the grave to hold Jesus. God raised him from the dead. Because Jesus conquered death and the grave, the devil and hell were completely defeated. Every follower of Christ has the promise that he, too, will have victory over death, the grave and hell.

CONCLUSION — HE ASCENDED — (V. 33) — Jesus ascended into heaven. He is now exalted and at the right hand of God. He is interceding for his followers. One of these days he will return. When? That is something else which God alone knows. He tells us to be listening daily for the mighty shout from heaven and to be looking for his return. Until he does come it is our duty, as Christians, to spread the gospel throughout the earth. He gives us power to do so.

Interior Employees Buy Cabinet Chair For Retiring Boss

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top Interior Department officials passed the hat today to buy their retiring boss a farewell present — his black leather cabinet chair.

Secretary of Interior Douglas McKay has quit his job to enter the U. S. senatorial race in Oregon. He is seeking the seat now held by Sen. Wayne L. Morse, a Democrat.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said it is customary for a retiring cabinet member's staff to purchase his chair for him. The chairs each bear a plate with the official's name engraved on it.

Cabinet chairs cost about $115.

McKay has invited all employees of the department to his office next Friday to bid him farewell. He said he will fly home to Oregon on April 15.

Asked if he would confer with his successor before he leaves, McKay told a reporter: "I don't even

New Haven Youths Held by White County Authorities

CARM, Ill.—White county authorities today held five New Haven youths, four charged with larceny, the other with delinquency.

Held are Joe Travelstead, 19, Don Ritcheson, 17, Edgar Littrell, 17, Wilburn McCreary, 17, and Freddy Upton, 15. Littrell, Ritcheson and McCreary had been in the Gallatin county jail at Shawneetown charged with entering the Duffy garage in New Haven, and were moved to Carmi on hold warrants.

Littrell, Ritcheson and McCreary implicated Travelstead and Upton in the burglary of Pomeroy school southeast of Carmi admitted shoot-know who my successor will be."

The White House has dropped no hint, although several congressmen have recommended home-state officials for the post.

McKay said goodbye to President Eisenhower Friday when he attended his last cabinet meeting.

ing rabbits from a car at night, vandalism at the Mt. Vernon, Ind., and New Haven bridge, stealing gas from the Emma township road commissioner and the Boyd Duley farm at New Haven, and break-ins at a schoolhouse in Gallatin county and the Western Auto store at Norris City.

Ritcheson and McCreary also admitted two house break-ins near New Haven.

PASSING FACTS
Baton Rouge, La. — (NEA) — Louisiana State's 1956 football squad should feature a strong passing game, if the annual spring intrasquad game is an example. The three top Tiger passers completed 14 of 26 attempts in the contest.

DERBY DANDIES
Louisville — (NEA) — Modern records show that the Kentucky Derby provides more successful sires in this country than any other single race.

STINGY OUTFIT
Tampa, Fla. — (NEA) — The Chicago White Sox led the American League in shutting out the opposition last season with 20. They were blanked on 12 occasions.

Alston Worries About Dodgers' Pitching with Season Opener 10 Days Off

By United Press
Worried Walt Alston today admitted Brooklyn's pitching situation has grown "extremely desperate" and indicated no obvious help was in sight with the season opener only 10 days away.

"Our pitching can't possibly get any worse," moaned the manager of the world champions in Knoxville, Tenn.

He has every reason to be concerned inasmuch as Brooklyn's once-talented pitching staff has shrunk to almost nothing.

Carl Erskine has been pounded for 33 hits and 17 runs in 25 innings. Billy Loes' arm went dead and he was sent home. Don Newcombe's arm has been slightly sore and he has worked only four times this spring.

Don Bessent has come up with an injury and Ken Lehman, a 22-year-old game winner at Montreal last season who was counted on to take Johnny Podres' place, has been slammed for 23 hits and 20 runs in 22 innings so far.

Day of Rest
The Dodgers' weary pitching staff received a welcome day of rest Friday when a scheduled game against Milwaukee at Chattanooga was called off because of wet grounds.

Left fielder Bucky Harris has troubles, too. Four of his players — pitchers Billy Hoelt and Virgil Trucks and outfielders Al Kaline and Jim Delsing — have come up with sore arms which required special treatment at Houston, Tex., Friday.

Mike Higgins of the Red Sox was wearing a smile, though, and rookies Don Buddin and Marty Keough were the cause. Each slammed a homer with the bases full to lead Boston to a 19-4 triumph over Jacksonville of the Sally league at Jacksonville, Fla., Friday.

Rain forced cancellation of the game between the Cardinals and White Sox but the Cards took advantage of the lull to purchase the contract of Jackie Brandt, 21-year-old outfielder, from Rochester of the International league.

Drives in Four
Another youngster making a determined bid to stay in the big time is Yankee infielder Bobby Richardson. He drove in four runs to help the Yanks beat the Phillies 7-4, in 10 innings at Mobile, Ala., Friday.

Washington edged Cincinnati, 4-3, at Florence, S. C., as Dean Stone of the Senators shut out the Redlegs during the seven innings he worked.

Dale Long smashed his fifth homer of the spring plus a pair of singles in leading the Pirates to a 9-8 decision over the Athletics at Austin, Tex., and in a game played at Waco, Tex., a second Pirate squad defeated New Orleans of the Southern Association, 14-7, as Bob Friend went the full nine innings and gave up 11 hits.

First baseman Gail Harris poled two homers to pace the Giants to a 13-6 victory over the Indians at Houston as Johnny Antonelli pitched eight innings and contributed a three-run homer himself.

A three-run homer by Ernie Banks featured a five-run rally in the sixth inning that helped the Cubs to a 15-1 victory over the Orioles at San Antonio, Tex.

Young Polio Victims' Letters Spur Wertz in His Comeback

By NEA Service
TUCSON, Ariz. — (NEA) — Letters written to him by youthful polio victims give Vic Wertz added incentive to come back.

"I guess," says the bald Cleveland first baseman, "they feel that if I can play baseball again, maybe they have a chance, even though very few who have had polio came out of it as lucky as I did. I didn't have any after effects, except pleasant ones, you see."

Wertz is again hitting home runs as the Indians' No. 1 first sacker.

Al Lopez has supreme confidence in the slugger.

"Vic is a professional," explains Manager Lopez, "and I know I'm going to get a professional job regardless of where I play him."

Each spring there is a ball-player attempting to bounce back, but the entire country is rooting for the likeable Wertz.

When Wertz was stricken last August, no one including himself, thought he'd be able to play again. Today, Wertz even can gag about his attack.

"I can even joke about it a little and say it looked like the worst came to Wertz," he smiles.

"But honestly I'd have to say that coming down with polio was about the nicest thing that ever happened to me."

"That sounds crazy, but it just showed me what wonderful people there are in this world. I received 14,000 letters, more than 200 pounds of them, along with 150 telegrams and gifts of fruit, flowers and other things."

"One lady, 89 years old, from Nevada said she had seen me play in Arizona and that she was coming back this year and I'd better be in shape to play because she was looking forward to it. How could you let anybody like that down?"

Wertz, just turned 30, says he did not indulge in any particular training program after he overcame the dread disease.

"I was told to take it easy," he explains. "I'm a little overweight but that's good for me at this time of the year."

There is no doubt in Wertz' mind that he can come back.

"I know I can still play ball," he says.

"And for once I'd like to go through an entire season without anything going wrong."

Eisenhower to Fly To Georgia Monday

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower plans to leave by plane for a work-and-golf vacation in Augusta, Ga., between 10:30 and 11 a. m., EST, Monday.

However, the White House announced Friday the outcome of the Masters Golf tournament at Augusta may affect Mr. Eisenhower's plans.

The tourney is scheduled to end Sunday. But if a play-off develops, the President may have to delay his take-off.

He plans to remain in Augusta about one week. Mrs. Eisenhower will accompany him.

Fireman Stricken Fighting Blaze

DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — A fireman was stricken with a heart attack Friday night as he battled a fire which destroyed the Blue Mill Tea Room here.

Walter Dooling, 54, an assistant fire chief, was listed in serious condition at a Decatur hospital after flames burned out the night spot.

Damage to the one-story brick structure was estimated at $175,000.

H. G. McNamee, owner and manager of the establishment, discovered the fire at 9 a. m. and warned 75 patrons to flee. The blaze, fanned by 25-mile-per-hour winds, also destroyed a frame house near the building.

Cause of the fire was unknown.

Illinois Farmers to Save $5 Million Yearly on Gas Refund Legislation

CHICAGO (AP) — Illinois farmers will save more than five million dollars a year under new federal gasoline tax refund legislation, Otto Steffey, president of the Illinois Agricultural Assn., said today.

Two cents federal tax paid on each gallon of gas used on farms will be refunded for fuel purchased after Dec. 31, 1955.

The refund plan originally was sponsored by the Farm Bureau.

There will be additional refunds of more than $2,700,000 a year, Steffey said, if the federal tax is increased from 2 to 3 cents a gallon to assist in federal highway programs.

Amateur Ken Venturi Holds Masters Lead

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Confident Ken Venturi, second amateur ever to hold the whip hand in the Masters golf tournament at the mid-point, figured today that two more 89's would win it and he hopes he can shoot them.

He indicated it would take that kind of scoring to stave off defending champion Cary Middlecoff of Dallas, Tex., who fell four strokes back of the youngster Friday but still was the only man close.

Venturi thus not only was aiming at the first amateur victory in the storied event but at cracking a record considered as impregnable hereabouts as the hallowed feats of another amateur, Bobby Jones, 26 years ago, before Venturi was born. That is the 274 scoring record set by Ben Hogan on the windswept Augusta National course in 1933.

Followed by Jones
Perhaps portentously, one of those joining the swelling throng on Venturi's route at the 13th hole Friday was an invalid in an electric cart — Bobby Jones himself, who founded the Masters on the course of his own design in 1934 and watched it grow into a stupendous attraction.

Jones followed Venturi wistfully as the young San Francisco auto salesman came on in with his second straight penetration of the 70 barrier—a 69 to go with a 68. No amateur has ever put together a pair of sub-70's in the 20 Masters events and Venturi also tied a scoring record for 36 holes.

The 135 first was scored by Henry Picard (who ultimately lost the tournament in 1935) and duplicated by Byron Nelson, who finally beat Hogan in a playoff in 1942.

But in talking in terms of two more 69's, Venturi was speaking of a total score of 273, one better than Hogan's record 274 which at that time was five strokes better than the Masters had ever been conquered before.

Masters tournament officials, in their little greenbook, are of the opinion that in 1953 Hogan "achieved the best seventy-two hole stretch of golf ever played by anyone anywhere."

No Showing at All
But it was a ghost of the old Hogan who collapsed to a 78 Friday after an opening 69. Another heavy favorite, Sam Snead, had not made a showing at all with his total of 149.

Only Middlecoff, who got a par 72 to put with an opening 67, stayed within reasonable closing distance of the amateur firebrand. Among others who dropped back was Billy Joe Patton, the amateur who may have given Venturi the idea two years ago when he led the field after 36.

Kinder Hopes for 10 Victories for St. Louis Cardinals

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Ancient Ellis Kinder is going on 42, and he's also going on the assumption that he can win 10 games for the St. Louis Cardinals this season.

"That's in relief, though, not startling," hastily put in the rubber armed right-hander, who was purchased by the Cards from the Boston Red Sox during the past winter.

"At my age," Kinder said, winking, "I leave those 20 victories to the kids. But what the hell, I think I can win 10. Why not? My arm feels as good as it ever did and if I don't know how to pitch by now, I never will."

"Quit?" Kinder repeated a question put to him. "What for? I'm still getting the hitters out, ain't I? Well, some of 'em, anyway. But I ain't gonna quit until this darn arm falls off. I like this game too much."

In coming to the Cardinals, the easy-going Kinder is returning to the city where he made his debut in the majors with the St. Louis Browns in 1946. The Browns traded him to the Red Sox after the 1947 season and it was with Boston that he enjoyed some of his finest pitching years.

Bull Dogs Lose Baseball Tilt At West Frankfort

The Harrisburg Bull Dogs dropped a 4-3 decision in a baseball game at West Frankfort yesterday afternoon.

The scheduled seven-inning contest was called at the end of the sixth because of darkness, by agreement of both coaches at the outset of the inning.

The score was tied 3 to 3 at the top of the sixth, but in the last half of the final frame the Red Birds scored the winning run on a couple of local errors.

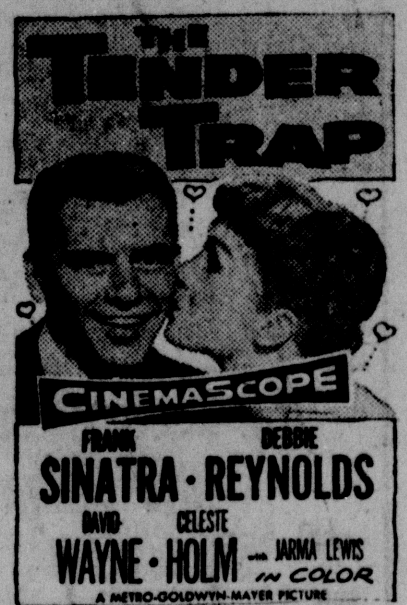

Coach Lawrence Caluffetti pitched John W. Hatcher the first four innings and Jim Molinarolo the last two, and they allowed five hits, Lavish on the mound for Frankfort, permitted six safeties.

Other players for Harrisburg were Mickey Stone 2b, Bob Pavlonis ss, Bill Henshaw lf, Ray Hasset c, Don Pickford rf, John Ziegler lb, Bob Clark cf, Jack Weatherly 3b and Trevor Whiteside, who pinch hit for Weatherly in the fifth.

Next baseball game will be Carriers Mills here April 10.

Chicago Merchant Labeled As One of The Most Amazing Political Figures Enters Illinois Race for Governor

CHICAGO — One of America's most amazing political figures turned to politics only months ago — and now is gunning for Adlai Stevenson's old job, governor of Illinois.

He is Morris B. Sachs, 59-year-old merchant and philanthropist whose department stores and "amateur hour" broadcasts have been a part of the Chicago scene as long as the Merchandise Mart.

Like a rooster who suddenly out-swam the ducks, he swept into the Chicago administration as city treasurer in April, 1955. He netted 217,452 more votes than his opponent, a margin that hit political pros with an awesome meaning of the word amateur.

Next November, Sachs wants to repeat his poll magic for a second office—in the capitol at Springfield.

He opens his campaign tomorrow in Kincaid, Christian county, without the backing of any political organization.

Applying department store cost accounting tactics, Sachs lopped five employees from his staff and put in for an operating budget of $27,000 less than his predecessor.

Like the late Fiorello LaGuardia, he turned a deaf ear to yowls of protest and said:

"I was elected by the taxpayers to save their money, not to spend it."

The value of money has played a poignant role in Sachs' life. He came to Chicago in 1910 as a penniless 13-year-old orphan from Lithuania.

With $3 worth of neckties, socks and handkerchiefs he wangled on credit, he began peddling door-to-door. Nine years later he opened his first store, an operation now covering three-fourths of a city block on the south side. A second store later was opened on the north side. His payroll ranges between 450 and 550 employees, depending on the season.

And his list of charities is big. Attesting to his generosity, there are Morris B. Sachs rooms in Graceland University as well as in a Chicago Roman Catholic girls' high school and a Catholic boys' academy.

Contributions also go to hospitals, research foundations and the Catholic Youth Organization, and to such fund drives as the cerebral palsy telethon.

During World War II, the charge account of each Sachs store customer who donned a uniform was stamped "paid." Bills totaling $88,000 were written off.

Each month his city treasurer's pay of $830, plus $170 from a personal foundation, goes to charity. In December, the $1,000 was donated to the Illinois Children's Aid.

Sachs' late-in-life entry into politics came when—"out of the blue," as one observer put it—he suddenly announced he would run for city treasurer in the February, 1955, Chicago primary as a mate with incumbent Mayor Martin Kennelly.

Kennelly, dropped by the regular Democratic organization, was defeated along with his slate. But political veterans were bug-eyed over Sachs' power as a vote-getter. He outdrew anyone else on his slate—and was invited to run in April with Kennelly's successor, Daley.

When elected to office in April, Sachs again scored heavily and his plurality topped even Daley's.

Sachs' wife is an attorney and a member of the Women's Federal Bar Association. One of his two daughters also is a lawyer. His only son is an army second lieutenant stationed in Korea.

Opening his new campaign as "rebel" Democrat, Sachs said he chose Christian county because it was where the late Gov. Henry Horner opened his second term fight in 1936 when he had a factional contest.
